Who is your Fellows Leader, if you have one:

Anne Wile

Are you submitting this homework on behalf of your Fellows Team? *

Yes

- (•) No
- ( ) No, I do not have a Fellows Team

How will you turn the root challenge in your community into an issue on which to organize? *

Stay sober, and be a positive outlet, writing a book need to publish it, shared my manuscript on Facebook, still working on editing with Amazon right now, not make things too personal, but speak generally, so as to inform others of how I am able to stay well, awareness of repercussions involved with use of alcohol of drugs, is being learned online at The National Institute on Drug Abuse.

What is your strategy or theory of change on this issue? (i.e. Strategic triangle or Goals, Strategy, Tactics) *

Staying sober, and how I am able to make a positive difference in my life, and then be able to be an advocate for others, in areas other than just sobriety, work.

Describe the issue ecosystem surrounding your challenge. *

Mental health issues, associated to the use of drugs and alcohol. Being an advocate will require me from refraining from drug use, drinking, and dating.

What are your next steps? *

To stay sober, not date, and get a job, and move forward in life, and that by that example be able to set a good example, not by helping others one on one or directly, but overall doing well, is how best to help people believe in achieving well, and then grow a better understanding of those who are not well, and not be judgmental towards those who are not well, pass less judgment on the ill or disabled, I think is the problem I face personally, with presentation of self. I think that if others are able to see a good example of presentation of self, then that's how best to help others present themselves, be accepted in spite of their disabilities. This is a tough subject one that need more research to be done by me on discrimination of the disabled, and its effects on the psych, ability to adapt, if that is ones gift, my gift adapting to my surroundings, how can I be better suited so that others, can better adapt to their lives not mine or my personal issues, is not the solution, leadership and being an influencer is not the solution to this problem, that only stirs negative emotions toward me, as not being good enough for jobs, employment, dating, or success, which is inhumane. My job is to stay sober, celibate, and clean no more dating.
